“HIGH BEAMS” BY ALVIN SCHWARTZ

The girl drove the old blue sedan was a senior at the high school. She lived on a farm about eight miles away and used the car to drive back and forth. She drove into town that night to see a basketball game. Now, she was on her way home. As she pulled away from the school, she noticed a red pickup truck followed her out of the parking lot. A few minutes later the truck was behind her.

“I guess we’re going in the same direction,” she thought.

She began to watch the truck in her mirror. When she changed her speed, the driver of the truck changed his speed. When she passed a car, so did he.

Then, he turned on his high beams, flooding her car with light. He left them on for almost a minute.

“He probably wants to pass me,” she thought. Of course, she was becoming uneasy.

Usually, she drove home over a back road. Not too many people went that way. When she turned onto that road, so did the truck. “I’ve got to get away from him,” she thought, and she began to drive faster. She drove even faster, but the truck driver stayed right behind her. Then, he turned his high beams on again. Once more her car was ablaze with light.

"What is he doing?" she wondered. "What does he want?" Next, he turned them off again. A minute later, he had them on again, and he left them on.

At last, she pulled into her driveway, and the truck pulled in right behind her. She jumped from the car and ran to the house. "Call the police!" she screamed at her father. Out in the driveway, she could see the driver of the truck. He wanted to go in the house.

When the police arrived, they started to arrest him, but he pointed to the girl's car. "You don't want me," he said. "You want him."

Behind the driver's seat, there was a dreadful man. As the driver of the truck explained it, that creepy person slipped into the girl's car just before she left the school. He saw it happen, but there was no way he could stop it. He thought about getting the police, but he was afraid to leave her. So, he followed her car.

Each time the man in the back seat reached up to overpower her, the driver of the truck turned on his high beams. Then the man dropped down, afraid that someone might see him. Then he turned his high beams on again. After a minute, he turned them off. Then he turned them on again and off again.
